Assess and respond to threats in the new age of security.

Threats to national security are at an all time high. America's leaders have told citizens to serve as the eyes and ears that can prevent terror attacks. Where will they turn if they think there's a possibility of a terrorist threat? There's no question, it will be 911. This course will prepare you to respond to potential or in-progress terror threats.

TOPICS COVERED:

- Nuclear, biological and chemical threats
- The terrorist psyche
- Identifying potential targets
- Hazardous materials incidents
- Protection of responders
- Coordinating inter-agency response
- Incident and Unified Command Systems

LEARN HOW TO:

- Use the Homeland Security Advisory System
- Plan for and coordinate response to Weapons of Mass Destruction (WMD) attacks
- Differentiate between criminal and terrorist threats
